Rough Rider Injured.

One of the Rough Riders of the 101 Ranch received a sprained wrist Friday night while trying to ride one of the wild horses of the circus. ## BADLY HURT BY AN AUTOMOBILE Accident at Sleighsbrough Ferry Friday Afternoon in Which a Traveling Salesman Was Painfully Injured.

Leonard Dahlstrom, a traveling salesman from Lowell, Mass., was badly injured shortly after 4 o'clock Friday afternoon when he was hit by a Ford automobile driven by Paul Pilladick of Newburgh. The accident occurred at the Sleighsbrough ferry slip. Mr. Dahlstrom and his car were on the river when the Ford, driven by Pilladick, came upon them. The Ford struck the rear of the salesman's car, throwing him into the water. Pilladick started up his machine and in some manner lost control and the car swerved and shot straight at the bench where the two men were sitting. Before they could get out of the way Dahlstrom was pinned against the side of the bench by one wheel of the automobile and Smith by quickly spreading his legs apart just escaped being pinned by the other forward wheel of the car.

Bystanders picked Dahlstrom up and carried him into a nearby saloon and Dr. C. P. Keefe was summoned. Dr. Keefe upon an examination found that the man was badly injured and he was taken to his room in the Eagle Hotel in a taxicab where the physician dressed his wound. The wheel of the automobile struck Dahlstrom squarely between the legs as he sat on the bench and it was found that the lower part of his abdomen had been crushed in. While his injuries are quite serious it is expected that he will recover. Mr. Dahlstrom is a traveling salesman and has made the Eagle Hotel his headquarters for the past few days. Mr. Pilladick who was driving the machine is a large property owner in Newburgh. He was not arrested as the affair was clearly an accident. Mr. Smith, who narrowly escaped injury, is employed by the Brewster Powder Company at Port Ewen.

197 LIVES LOST IN ALBERTA MINE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Hillcrest, Alberta, June 20.—Fighting heroically in the face of poisonous gases, rescue squads dug their way today into the mass of tangled wreckage a mine No. 20 of the Hillcrest collieries, where 197 men were entombed by the explosion of yesterday.

Nearly 50 bodies have been brought to the surface. Fire was still raging in the interior today and serious apprehensions were felt for those who were still in the shaft.

Flames shot from the mouth of the shaft setting fire to trees and brush for some distance. The force of the shock blew the top off an engine house not far from the shaft, and carried one miner in the air nearly a hundred feet, burning his eyes out and injuring him so severely that he died an hour afterward.

Several miners rushed up the steep shaft and reached the side of the mountain in safety. The explosion had entered the mine with Superintendent Quigley, who was today believed to be among the dead.

Both ends of the pit were blown out and the roof of a concrete building ten yards from the mouth of the pit was blown off and debris scattered for hundreds of yards.

The shock of the explosion was felt at Lethbridge and other nearby towns. Thomas Corke, a well known miners' union official, is among the missing.

Hundreds of relatives and friends of the miners rushed to the pit mouth immediately after the explosion and waited in silent groups through the night for word from their loved ones. The women pale and sorrowful, the children weeping and the men, grim faced, doing what they could for the rescue of the entombed.

The greater number of the miners were in the middle of the workings and had no chance to escape. It is feared that it will take a week to penetrate to the interior of the mine.

This was the third disaster which has befallen the inhabitants of Crow's Nest Pass. Four years ago thirty-two men were killed in Bellevue mine by gas and ten years ago Frank Mine was wiped out by the mountain toppling over and 125 men killed.

The stars were shining brightly a moment before. Can Winsted beat this?"

Five Bad Men, A Lady in Deadly Peril and a Brave Rescuer of the Damsel in Distress Figure in This Tale of Mystery.

The holding up of a young girl along the Rondout Creek near the residence of John A. Fischer, 334 Abel street, by a party of five unknown men and her rescue from the gang at the point of a revolver by another unknown man at 11 o'clock last night, was the subject of a sensational story which was being held under cover of a mystery.

While the police were busy getting the Black Maria ready to get other messages came that they need not come to the scene as the men had made their escape.

This morning it was learned that the gang were located on the dock by the screams of the girl and that an unknown man pulling a gun rushed to the scene and found the man holding the girl and at the point of his revolver made them release her when she disappeared. Who she was could not be learned. The names of the gang who were holding her up also could not be learned as no one in that vicinity seemed to know who they were. After the gang had summoned up courage enough to make a dash for liberty the man who was holding them at the point of a gun also disappeared. No one seemed to know who he was either and mystery seems to surround the affair.

AERIAL COLLISION COSTS NINE LIVES

Aeroplane and Dirigible Balloon Collide 600 Feet Above the Earth and Explosion and Fire Follow.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Vienna, June 20.—The worst disaster in the history of aviation occurred at the military aerodrome on the outskirts of this city today when nine men, including five army and navy officers, were killed in a collision between an aeroplane and a dirigible balloon.

The two air craft were maneuvering at a height of about 600 feet when the aeroplane, a powerful Farman biplane, crashed into the gas bag of the dirigible Parseval.

There was a loud explosion, followed by a burst of flames which ignited both craft.

The blazing balloon and the burning aeroplane dropped through space like flaming meteors.

Those on board feared inevitable death in the form, either to remain on board and burn to death or leap to destruction from the wrecked and burning air carriages.

The spectators upon the ground stood rooted in horror at the spectacle. They could see the figures upon the balloon clinging to the frame work of the big dirigible as the struts buckled and broke.

The aeroplane was wrecked by the impact and immediately turned over. The aviator had been strapped to his seat and he hung helpless in the burning wreckage.

In addition to the pilots and the crew the passengers on the Parseval and the Farman bi-plane included a captain and four lieutenants.

As soon as the burning debris reached the ground soldiers began pouring water upon it and tearing it apart in hope that the lives of some of the victims might yet be saved.

Doctors were rushed to the scene, but it was found that all who had not been killed outright were so badly burned and shaken by the fall that death was only a matter of a few minutes.

Some of the victims had all their clothing burned off and their bodies were so black and charred as to be almost unrecognizable.

At the time of the catastrophe a number of aeroplanes were in the air going through the regular manoeuvres.

An investigation of the tragedy was commenced immediately and officers of the Aerial squad expressed the opinion that the aviator of the aeroplane had momentarily lost control of his machine or that the Parseval was in command of Captain Hausen of the Austrian army. Accompanying him were three lieutenants and two corporals.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the balloon ascended at Fissahmend, where the military aerodrome is located, to fly to Koenigsburg for the purpose of making photographs to test a new aero-photographing apparatus.

For an hour before starting on its journey the balloon whirled above the aerodrome, while the engineer tested its motor and its steering gear.

Just as the balloon set off on its journey Lieut. Slutz, in his Farman bi-plane, accompanied by another officer, started after the big cigar-shaped gas bag. The bi-plane circled the balloon several times and then Slutz tried to fly over the Parseval. He apparently misjudged his distance for, instead of topping the Koenig balloon, the bi-plane rammed the gas-bag which was punctured.

The noise of the explosion could be plainly heard upon the ground by those who witnessed the disaster.

Approximately 475 lives have been lost in aviation disasters since Lieut. T. H. Selfridge, of the United States Army, was killed in 1908. Today's disaster at Vienna was the worst that has occurred this year, but there has been heavy loss of life since January 1. Fatalities among army aviators have been particularly severe.

Following is a partial list of tragedies of 1914:

Jan 25—British aviator killed at Hendon.

Feb. 2—Two French officers killed at Bourges.

Feb. 9—Lieut. Post, U. S. A., killed at San Diego, Cal.

Feb. 16—Lieut. McCurdy, U. S. A., killed at Pensacola, Fla.

Feb. 28—Two Turkish officers killed near Damascus.

March 1—Two killed at Lyons, France.

March 11—Two British officers killed at Salisbury Plain.

March 14—German officer killed at Koenigsberg.

April 1—Three killed at Rheims, France.

May 8—One killed at Utica, N. Y.

May 9—Two German officers killed at Stettin.

May 12—British officer and mechanic killed at Aldershot.

May 15—British officer and sergeant killed at North Allerton.

May 17—Two German officers killed at Halberstadt.

May 18—Two German officers killed at Darmstadt.

Kraft, Judge Van Ethen, Simon E. Van Wagenen and Frederick Koch, began the work of restoring the church as soon as the weather permitted. Henry F. Myers was engaged as architect to draw up the plans and specifications and have general oversight of the work. The carpenter's contract was let to the firm of Peter Osterhout & Co. The masonry was done by C. Van Aken and the painting and decorating by M. H. Herzog. The organ was rebuilt by Eiferst & Stohler of Steinway, L. I. ly vestments, as portrayed in the second chapter of the Revelation of St. John the Divine.

While the church was being thus restored and beautified, the Woman's Auxiliary of the parish have had the sacristy completely made over and a new vestment-press put in. The choir room has been converted into a chapel, the painting and decorating also being paid for by the Woman's Auxiliary.

The first service in the restored church on Sunday, June 21, will be a low mass for communicants at 7:30 o'clock. At half past ten o'clock an office for the reopening of a church will be held, followed immediately by high mass and a solemn Te Deum. It is hoped that every member of Holy Cross parish will be present at the high mass Sunday and give liberally toward the thanksgiving offering on that day.

WITH UNCLE SAM'S BOYS AT VERA CRUZ

The following letter from First Lieutenant Gerald L. McEntee, Jr., of the Seventh U. S. Infantry in Mexico to his brother, Dwight McEntee of Kingston gives many interesting sidelights on life in Uncle Sam's service:

Vera Cruz, June 10.

Dear Dwight: It has been some time since I have written you so in order to give you a resume of incidents since my last letter I will go back to the time just before we received orders to embark at Galveston.

We had been pursuing the policy of "watchful waiting" at Galveston since February 25, 1913, but when we read in the papers of April 21 that four Americans had been killed in the peaceful seizure of the custom house in Vera Cruz we knew that our waiting was due to come to an abrupt end.

It was not a surprise then when an orderly knocked at the door of my temporary quarters there in Galveston just as my family were preparing to retire for the night of April 23, and reported: "Sir, the compliments of the commanding officer. We will embark at daylight on board the transport Kilpatrick to sail for Vera Cruz."

It was a simple matter to pack my field kit, ready at all times, but quite a serious problem to pack the household effects of a five roomed cottage for I planned to send the family back to our permanent quarters at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

We packed, loaded and boarded the transport by ten o'clock, the 24th, and as our sailing hour was 4:30 p. m. I went back to my quarters and helped with the packing, closed the house, checked the trunks, purchased tickets and prepared everything so that Charlotte and the boys could board the Santa Fe the same evening I left. Our leaving taking was very tender. You can imagine the wives, sweethearts, friends and curious spectators who swarmed about the docks to bid a parting farewell to the soldiers who had been quite a large part of Galveston life for fourteen months.

It was mighty hard for me to leave my wife and two little boys, believe me, but she, you know, is the daughter of as fine a soldier as ever lived and the granddaughter of a major of Civil War fame and she herself is a soldier through and through and her fine spirit made it so much easier for me.

Our fleet of four army transports was conveyed by the battleship Louisiana and three torpedo boat destroyers to prevent Mexican gunboats from doing us any bodily harm. The first transport left at 4 p. m. and each of the others at half hour intervals. Our boat, the Kilpatrick, carried General Funston, the commanding general and staff, the Seventh Infantry and a number of war correspondents. Among these were Richard Harding Davis, Jack London, and others.

We sailed calm seas and passed three days and four nights enjoying the situation. I heard several junior officers complain of the length of the trip but those of us who had spent thirty days on a transport going to and from the Philippines on more than one occasion did not complain. We sat about studying our maps, pumping Mr. Emerson dry on the Mexican situation and listening to anecdotes of Mr. Davis and Mr. London of the many wars in which they have participated.

When we arrived off Vera Cruz at daylight, April 28 we were greeted by a magnificent sight. Here where Cortez landed centuries ago and where Scott landed and took the city two generations ago, were assembled the pride of Uncle Sam's navy. Sixteen battleships, cruisers, torpedo boats, colliers and as a last touch of modern war a hydroaeroplane was seen flying overhead in the peaceful calm of the early morning.

Inside the breakwater were anchored French, Spanish, English and German men of war and the Prairie and Chester, the latter directly opposite the Mexican naval college where her five inch guns played such havoc.

Shortly after docking the officers were given permission to go ashore. Mr. French and I strolled over to look the town over. Sailors and marines were everywhere. We first visited the naval school which is a large concrete building of two stories. Outside the building was little damaged but one could see holes in the walls where the five inch shells from the Chester had ginkled their way through. The captain of the Chester gave orders to shoot in every window of the upper story and to put one between just for luck.

The explosion of these shells occurred inside and resulted in wrecking the building. One could trace the trajectory of those shells through the thick concrete walls and partitions to the place where they exploded and tore up floors and created cruel havoc. We visited every room, laboratories, dormitories, all were completely wrecked and the floors were knee deep with dismantled models of ships, delicate instruments, uniforms, maps, chemicals, and personal effects of the cadets.

Bloodstained linen on cots in one room showed that here human clay had been shattered. It is said in this room twenty-seven people were killed by the bursting of one shell.

Do I hear you ask why all this destruction? This was the building in which machine guns were placed in the upper story windows and trained on our men as they advanced to peacefully take the custom house. The captain of the Chester saw the machine guns trained on our men and in five minutes put all out of commission. Sixty-five dead were removed from this one building.

We visited the large Mexican barracks or Cuartel. As the place was infected with smallpox and other diseases we were a bit wary of what we touched. The barracks were like a jail all the windows barred, doubt-

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 20, 1914.

We don't suppose that many of our readers ever heard of Pearson's Magazine, but for the sake of the few who have bought it it is well to announce the fact that probably no publication in the world prints so many malicious lies. One of its "star" writers is one Charles Edwards Russell, an insignificant puppy who once delivered a "lecture" in this city. His specialty is to write articles declaring that the news columns of all papers are controlled by the advertisers, who in turn are controlled by the "interests." In the last issue of this precious magazine Russell made the charge that nearly all the newspapers of the country suppressed the testimony of Clifford Thorne of Iowa before the Interstate Commerce Commission, because Thorne presented figures designed to show that an increase of freight rates was unnecessary. The implication is that if this news had been published the railroads would have stopped advertising. The New York Times has taken the trouble to show that Russell's accusation, so far as that paper is concerned, is a sheer falsehood, and, so far as we have noticed, all newspapers gave Thorne's remarks as much space as they were entitled to. It is a useless task to convict a liar, and Russell will keep on indefinitely. We don't know of any paper which is controlled by its advertisers. If there were one, the fact would soon become known, after which it would not have many subscribers or advertisers either.

The oldest wallpaper manufacturing concern in the United States—that of Janeway & Co., of New Brunswick, N. J., is closing up its business because of new "expenses and hazards caused largely by foolish legislation." The President of the company has issued a statement which will strike a sympathetic chord in other business men. He complains that "while the men are allowed to work and thereby advance wages and make more onerous the manufacturers' burdens, the very men who are supposed to make the laws move toward co-operation and making a profit that would benefit them, and would not injure the public at all, they are threatened with fines and imprisonment." Every employer knows that it is getting harder and harder to carry on business successfully, and yet President Wilson is keeping Congress at work overtime for no other purpose than to further aggravate these unhappy conditions. Grades unions are to be given the right to boycott and intimidate without fear of punishment. Encouragement is given to foreign competitors located in countries where the wage scale is lower than it is here. Janeway & Co. are not the first to go out of business voluntarily instead of waiting for the sheriff, nor will they be the last. The "poor workingmen," for whose benefit all this legislation is supposed to be, are losing their jobs. They will not be "exploited" any more; neither will they receive more pay envelopes.

The Phoenix has always been greatly admired because of his ability to renew his youth and vigor every five hundred years, but he can hardly be considered as in the same class with Tammany Hall. It is hardly six months since that organization was supposed to be down and out politically. New York City elected a mayor hostile to it. The President appointed one of its enemies Collector of the Port, so that it could hope for no Federal patronage. Governor Glynn was supposed to have struck up a sort of working partnership with President Wilson, who was known to desire Murphy's elimination. Almost everybody said that the Tiger was now lawless and all but lifeless. But the scene has changed. This week there has been a "Democratic State Conference" in the metropolis. It did everything Murphy wanted it to do, and he demonstrated the fact that he could control three out of every four delegates on test votes. No more talk is heard about Governor Glynn being opposed to Tammany, and in his spasms of economy he was careful to veto no appropriation favored by Tammany. The Conference decided that there should be no unofficial convention to nominate candidates for State officers, which, as everybody knows, means that Murphy will pick them out. In view of the fine work he put in at the special election to decide the question of holding a Constitutional Convention, it is obviously a hopeless task for independent Democrats to endeavor to oppose his will. It requires no unusual intelligence to perceive that Tammany and the Democracy of New York State are the same thing. The only way to get rid of their rule is to elect the Republican ticket this year, and we expect to see this done by an unprecedented majority.

WHERE WOMEN'S CLUBS STAND.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

The General Federation of Women's Clubs, in the closing days of its convention, again threw conservatism to the winds in its resolution regarding the traffic in liquor. Inasmuch as it voices the opinion of a large body of earnest, intelligent women, it is worth reading rather thoughtfully:

"Whereas, The liquor traffic is responsible for three-quarters of the crime, vice and misery in this country; be it

"Resolved, That the women of the General Federation place themselves on record as opposed to the liquor traffic and in favor of such federal or state laws as will tend to eradicate this evil."

Of itself, the resolution does no more than reveal where clubwomen stand in the matter, although it would not have been difficult to guess, had they uttered not a word. The Federation represents a class of women tolerant enough to believe that the individual should be as free as may be to work out his own salvation, without the intervention of fruitless legislation designed to make him "good."

But along with that belief and with tolerance for the opinions and tastes and desires of others, comes the sorry knowledge that women in every age and in every clime, women of every rank and every color, women who have lived on poverty's flats, and women who have reigned in palaces royal, have grievously suffered from the woes that the traffic in liquor has brought. Suffered? Indeed, have they not borne the heaviest, the saddest burdens of all, when moderation has burst its bounds and has leaped into the frightful depths where out-and-out intemperance abounds? They have seen their best-loved despairingly fall by the wayside, never to rise again. They have watched the habit of drink insidiously steal upon brothers, fathers, husbands and sons, and have hopefully prayed that the habit might remain only moderate. And, alas, they have seen it grow and grow until their fondest hopes have been shattered. They have seen their loved ones, their husbands, and many hard times, have been forced to take the places of their disabled breadwinners, brought low through the blight.

Is it to wonder that women have outspokenly denounced their persistent foe? For the pleasures that inhere in wine "when it is red in the cup," have not come to them—their has been only the woe.

And is it to wonder that, for women, at least, the question of "personal freedom" pales into insignificance beside the larger question of the right to be freed from so widespread a traffic in the one thing that has cost them so much of all they hold dear.

As to clubwomen themselves, though they have not been immune from the havoc that the traffic has brought—for it reaches the high places and spreads out to the low—their have been the fewer instances, and they have not known the misery that comes when poverty is added to disgrace and the rest.

But they have seen how costly the abuse of liquor has been and what other women have suffered thereby, and with the larger vision that has come to them in recent years, they are ready to lift their voices in unison against so mighty an evil.

Those of us who, all our lives and the lives of our parents and grandparents before, have never once learned, through personal experience, what it is to sit in the dread shadows that liquor may cast when its deadliest work is done right in the midst of the home, cannot know, cannot even faintly guess what it means to number in the family flock one, or mayhap more, who drinks to the point of ruin and despair.

We can only see and see, pity, with thanks for our own glad exemption. But sometimes when we note how it destroys all manliness and honor and self-respect in one-time honorable, upstanding, lovable men and how the degradation takes the heart and the hope out of their families, we wonder if we would not almost grow bitter against a world that has stood for the evil so long had we been the ones to pay the last heaviest price.

The Federation was brief and calm in its resolution, but some of us are very glad that it came out in the open, for we are sure indeed that had we personally suffered as some women and some men have suffered, we would passionately say with that outspoken ex-governor of Tennessee: "I hate it for what it has done for me and those I love."

"I hate it for what it has done to others, to the state and to my country."

"I hate it with every fiber of my being—with every passion of my soul!"

And we would pray for its early eradication.

FRANCES SHAFFER.

Alas for the poor fly! He has few friends nowadays. One of the last to be kind to him was the dear old Countess of X. This open letter "To John," in the "personal column" of a weekly paper: "To John—if you'll come back home, John I promise not to run for office—if I get a chance—and not to search your pockets when you come home, as usual, in your cups; neither to find fault with your own good, but to throw up to you any more 'bout me havin' to pay for the marriage license; and not to tell you my family is better'n your'n—though Lord knows it is. So I close, hoping these few lines will find you on your way home, where any man with a grain o' common sense order be."—Atlanta Constitution.

When Penley Tried French.

Cyril Maude tells the following story in the Strand about his old friend W. S. Penley: Penley was stopping at a country house in Brittany, and the morning after his arrival, finding no looking-glass in his room, rang the bell.

"Apportez-moi un cheval," he said to the maid who answered it.

The maid choking with laughter, ran down to her master.

"Monsieur," she cried, "your friend who arrived last night is mad. He has nothing on but his dressing gown, and he has asked me to bring him a horse!"

The host ran up and asked Penley what on earth he wanted a "cheval" for.

"Well, dear old boy," was Penley's reply, "we talk of a cheval glass at home, don't we? I thought 'cheval' was the French word for a glass."

Cutting and—John the churchman Black was congratulated in Denver by a reporter, after a particularly eloquent sermon, on his mastery of pulpit oratory.

"What is your secret, sir?" the reporter asked.

"Well," was Dr. Black's smiling answer, "a preacher should always remember that, while there are sermons in stones, the more precious a stone is the more carefully it must be cut and polished."—Denver Post.

Doubly an Agnostic.

Professor Haley had been much annoyed by the persistency with which a young man, who boasted of being an agnostic, discussed his religious beliefs in the history class. One day he was giving his class a brisk oral examination. The young man was having a hard time with the direct, pointed questions that Professor Haley shot at him.

"I believe," remarked the professor, after a bit, with his usual lisp, "that you are an agnostic in religious matters."

"Yes, sir," answered the young man, promptly, centing an opportunity to escape from the grilling to which he was being subjected.

"I can assure you," said the professor, setting down a zero in his grade-book, "that you are an agnostic in history as well."

Scoring a Fine Point.

Irving Fletcher, the well-known advertising expert, said at an advertising men's dinner at Delmonico's in New York:

"A good advertisement never lies. It never deceives. For it can only pay by making life patrons, not transient ones."

"A good advertisement never lies, but it states the case as strongly as possible, and it avails itself of every point, however slight. There it is like young Jones."

"Young Jones proposed at Lake-wood to a pretty girl, but she said uncertainly, swinging her slim foot in and out of her slashed skirt:

"I like you, Mr. Jones. But then, I like Mr. Brown, too. And Mr. Brown is so devoted. He says he thinks of me 365 days in the year."

"Huh!" snorted young Jones, contemptuously. "He wants a day off every four years, does he? Well, I hope you're not taken in by any such one-horse devotion as that."—New York Herald.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 20.—Speculative interest in the Rock Island shares at the opening of the short session of the stock market today in consequence of the publication of the tentative plans for the reorganization of the system. The common stock opened at 3 for a gain of 1/4 and the preferred advanced 1/2. The Rock Island bonds and debentures were also in good demand. The four began at 79 and 77 at the close yesterday and the collateral fours were also up. There was brisk demand for the debenture fives which were also higher. A few minutes of the opening, this being the highest price it has touched this year. Amalgamated Copper was 1/4 lower. And Mo. Pac. and Lehigh Valley were also fractionally off. United States Steel Common was 1/4 lower at the start but soon recovered. Northern Pacific, B. R. T., Guggenheim Exploration and Anaconda Copper made slight gains. Reading began unchanged, then lost 1/4. Union Pacific also shaded. The curb was quiet. Americans in London were mixed, but had a good undertone.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

DOCTORS DISCUSS SANITARY CODE

Medical Society Suggests a Number of Changes in the Proposed Code Being Prepared by the Board of Health.

A meeting of the city physicians of the Ulster County Medical Society was held at the city hall on Friday evening to discuss the proposed new sanitary code of the board of health and with the exception of several changes recommended, the new code met with the approval of the physicians. Those present were Drs. Mary Gay Day, Frank Keator, Frank Eastman, A. A. Stern, E. E. Norwood, Daniel Connelly, A. S. Vrooman, Henry Van Hovenberg, Ingalls and Health Officer L. K. Stelle.

Dr. Keator, president of the medical society, called the meeting to order and said that it had been called in response to a letter he had received from Mayor Canfield enclosing a copy of the proposed code and asking the opinion of the medical society, and whether it had any suggestions or changes to suggest in regard to the code. Dr. Eastman was elected secretary and Dr. Ingalls was appointed to read the new code, which contained about fifty or more typewritten pages.

The new code was read in sections and discussed. The first change suggested by the physicians occurred in Regulation 4, in regard to nuisances, and it was suggested that the words "plumbing and sanitary inspectors or any police officer designated by the chief of police" be included in the paragraph allowing any member of the board of health or health officer to go on premises where a nuisance was maintained.

Regulation 5 in regard to vaults and removal of contents, the physicians were of the opinion that permits to clean vaults should be issued by the health officer instead of the sanitary inspector. The physicians were also of the opinion that no vault should be cleaned unless a suitable tar pot was burning as a screen so unbearable that neighbors are forced to close their doors and windows. It was decided to suggest that the words "no vault to be cleaned unless suitable tar pot is burning or any other odorant meeting with the approval of the board of health" be added.

Garbage Removal.

Regulation 7 in regard to garbage removal came in for general discussion. The physicians were of the opinion that the city should be divided into districts and no one allowed to collect any garbage in the city until he had secured a permit from the board of health and had been assigned to a district. Even then a man should not be allowed to permit a box on his wagon which had air tight covers and it was suggested that the following words be included in that regulation "that garbage only be collected in districts assigned by the board of health and in wagons with air tight metal box."

The physicians also believed that the section regarding the complaints that while the men are etc. been maintained.

Regulation 8 in regard to garbage removal must be removed from the sidewalk within one hour after being emptied should be changed to "a reasonable length of time." As one doctor pertinently said "no one knows when the garbage man is coming around to collect and it is not at all to expect that a man should sit around waiting for his garbage pail to be emptied."

The physicians were also of the opinion that tree limbs and girders that had been trimmed should be tied in bundles and placed on the sidewalk for collection instead of forcing the householder to place them in proper vessels.

Finally on motion, it was decided to refer Regulation 7 back to the board of health for reconstruction, suggesting that the changes noted be included.

Infectious Diseases.

It was suggested that in Regulation 11 in regard to infectious diseases, notice to be given that the words "it shall be the duty of the head of every family in the absence of a physician to report any communicable disease to the board of health within 12 hours" be included.

Regulation 12 in regard to infectious diseases of animals it was decided should be sent back for reconstruction as it did not include any provision whereby the board of health is notified of what animal has a communicable disease.

Stables and Manure Pits.

Regulation 15 in regard to stables and manure pits, also came in for general discussion. The physicians believed that the provision that every manure pit be emptied every two weeks should be eliminated and the period should be extended or the time of removal be made optional with the board of health, and it was moved to send that section back for reconstruction.

Milk Inspection.

Regulation 30 in regard to milk inspection, also came in for general discussion and it was decided that subsection B of the regulation be referred back for reconstruction with the recommendation that there be no charge made for the enamel sign the milk dealer is required to have placed on his delivery wagon.

It was also decided to strike out "well tinned iron containers" in subsection F of the regulation and substitute in its stead "containers constructed of materials that meet with approval of the board of health."

Section 4, subsection H, of the same regulation, also came in for discussion. This provided that where there were cases of scarlet fever, typhoid, diphtheria or smallpox on premises where milk is produced, handled or sold shall be reported to the board of health and it was suggested that tuberculosis and measles be included in the list of communicable diseases.

Dr. Stelle Appointed Committee.

It was also the sense of the society that no communicable diseases be placarded except those specified by the state board of health.

Dr. L. K. Stelle, at the close of the meeting, was made a committee of one to report to the board of health the action of the society in regard to the code.

BASEBALL GAMES IN FRANCE

Spectators Now Turn Out in Large Numbers, Declares American Instructor Burgess.

France in a year and a half has come to like baseball so well that at least 4,000 spectators are now to be seen at baseball games whenever they are played in the principal cities, according to W. H. Burgess, who returned the other day aboard the French liner Lorraine, after spending 18 months there teaching baseball.

Mr. Burgess had a copy of a book, "Le Baseball. Par John B. Foster," with photographs of some of the French teams, which shows that while the French may be adopting the game they are not adopting the American baseball uniforms. Each player is attired neatly and lightly in short tights and light shoes, more of a gymnasium outfit than diamond apparel.

The French are not only enthusiastic over baseball, but the many teams which have been organized are showing proficiency in the game, according to Mr. Burgess.

"I am president of the baseball club at Vesinet, and whenever we have played we have had a large attendance," he said. "All the baseball teams in the republic are under the direction of the racing club of France. The enthusiasm with which the young men have taken up playing, and the interest of the public, show that baseball has a great future in France."

BASEBALL NOTES

Baltimore of the Federal league has signed a pitcher named Fish. Wonder if he'll prove to be a whale.

Second baseman Bobby Byrne, of the Phillies, still lands on the ball the hardest of any of the little men.

Washington is first in war, first in peace and first to make a triple play in the American league this year.

Manager Jimmy Sheppard is carrying 23 men on his team and hopes to get 14 or 15 who can play ball.

Joe Cantillon of Minneapolis might try the suggestion of signing a youngster or two, to steady his team of old-timers.

Eddie Plank suggests a home for the aged ball players. Wise old man. He would then be sure of shelter when he retires in 1999.

Plank and Davis are now the only members of the Athletics of 1902 still with Manager Mack. D. F. Murphy was the last one to go.

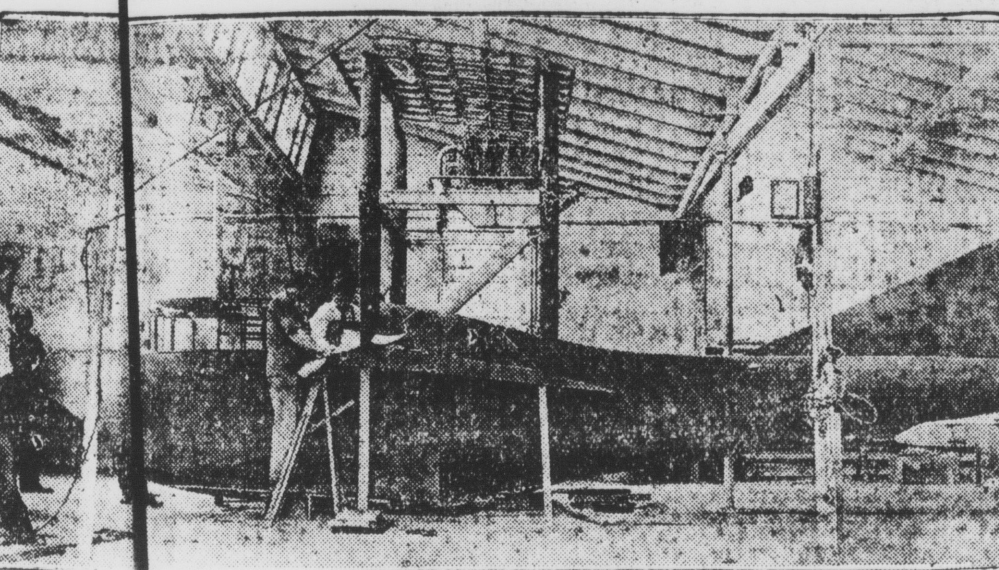

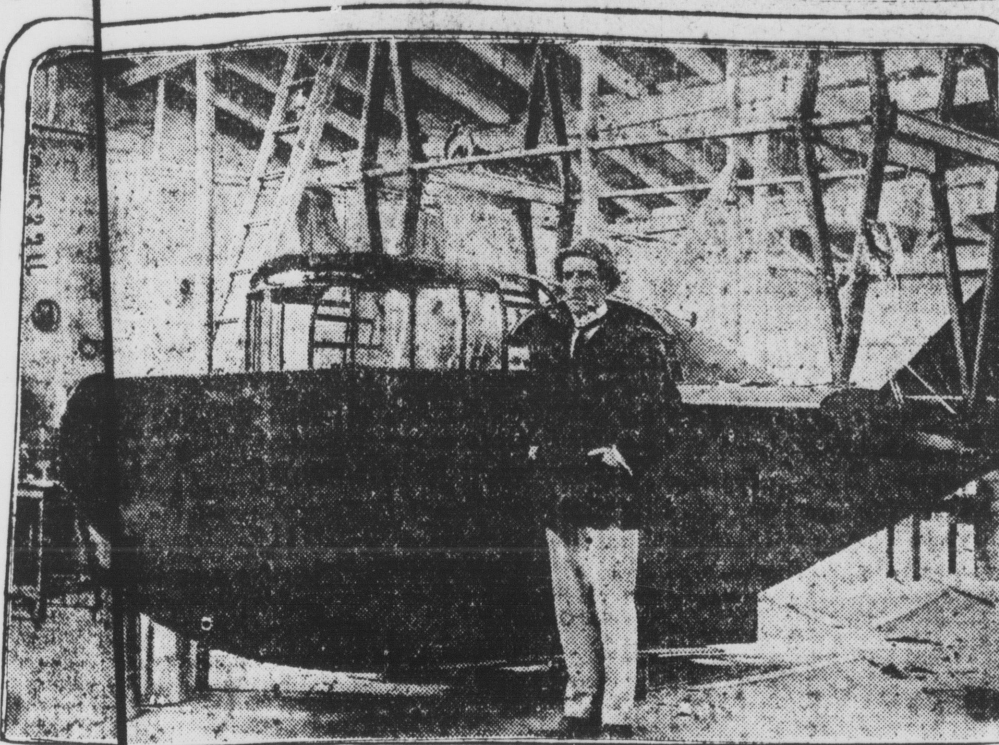

The Washington Star says: "One thing is certain. 'Stuffy' McInnes can travel farther for a foul than any other first sacker in the U. S. A."

"He's a fine young veteran," said Charles W. Somers, owner of the Cleveland club, upon witnessing Terry Turner on duty at third base.

Shortstop Barbara of New Orleans, counted on only as a possible substitute in the early calculations, is proving one of the sensations of the league.

Steadfastness.

It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude to live after our own; but the great man is he, who in the midst of the crowd, keeps, with perfect sweetness, the independence of solitude.—Emerson.

Hammond, N. The transatlantic trip will be attempted some time soon. The engine has been installed on the seaplane.

CARRANZA FLEES FROM HIS FOLLOWERS.

(Upper, Type of poor peon family at Saltillo. Lower, Celebration in honor of arrival of Carranza at Saltillo. General Carranza at Saltillo.)

General Vantustiano Carranza, First Chief of the Constitutional army, fled Wednesday from Saltillo to seek refuge at Laredo. Representative Kent, of California, conveyed the news to Washington. A dispatch late Wednesday night from Nuevo Laredo confirmed the story of Carranza's flight, and added that he would be detailed by Villa's rebels, if Villa desired it. On his arrival in Saltillo several days ago, Carranza distributed money to the poor peons. The general was received by thousands.

Queer Old Book Titles.

These are some of the odd titles of old English books published in the time of Cromwell:

"A Most Delectable Sweet Perfumed Nougat For God's Saints to Smell At."

"Biscuit Baked In the Oven of Charity, carefully conserved for the Chickens of the Church, the Sparrows of the Spirit and the Sweet Swallows of Salvation."

"A Sigh of Sorrow For the Sinners of Zion breathed out of a Hole in the Wall of an Earthly Vessel known Among Men by the name of Samuel Fish."

"Eggs of Charity Layed For the Chickens of the Covenant and Baked with the Water of Divine Love. Take ye out and Eat."

"The Spiritual Mustard Pot to make the Soul Sneezeth with Devotion."

Taking a Mean Advantage.

Once a thrifty Scotch physician was called to a case where a woman had dislocated her jaw. He very soon put her right. The woman asked how much was to pay. The doctor named his fee. The patient thought it too much. He, however, would not take less, and as the woman refused to give him the fee he began to yawn. Yawning, as every one knows, is infectious. The young woman in turn yawned. Her jaw again went out of joint, and the doctor triumphantly said, "Now, until you hand me over my fee your jaw can remain as it is." Needless to say, the money was promptly paid.

MAY BE CANDIDATE TO SUCCEED ROOT. (James Wadsworth.)

Washington, June 20.—According to rumors which are being circulated in political circles here, James Wadsworth is William Barnes's choice as candidate for United States Senate to succeed Elihu Root as senator from New York.

SOME FAMOUS PAINTINGS.

A Tiny Work of Art and Rosa's Transformed Harpsichord.

The smallest painting in the world of distinctive merit was executed on the smooth side of a grain of corn by a Flemish artist. On this limited surface the artist painted in perfect detail a mill, a miller with a sack of grain on his back, a horse and cart and a group of several peasants standing in a road.

The largest picture ever painted is said to be a panorama of the Mississippi river, executed by John Banvard, an artist who died in Watertown, S. D., in 1891. The gigantic canvas was twenty-two feet high and nearly two miles long. It gave a detailed representation of 2,000 miles of the Father of Waters.

The largest of the old masters' canvases is Murillo's "Appearance of the Christ Child to St. Anthony of Padua." The picture is ten feet wide and eight-eighths feet high.

It is related that a friend called on Salvador Rosa in Florence one day and found him playing on an old harpsichord. The caller asked the artist why he kept such a worthless instrument.

"Why, it is not worth a scudo," the friend said.

"I will wager," replied Rosa, "that it shall be worth a thousand before you see it again."

A bet was made. Rosa immediately painted a landscape on the lid that not only sold for 1,000 scudi, but was accounted a work of great merit.

Inadvisable.

During a snowstorm on the Highland railway a train was held up for an hour or so. The guard, a cheery Scot, passed along the carriages trying to keep up the spirits of the passengers. An old gentleman angrily complained that if the train didn't go on he would "die of cold."

"Tak' my advice an' no' dse that," replied the guard. "Min' y', we charge a shillin' a mile for corpses."—Dundee Advertiser.

Wireless Messages.

DOCTORS DISCUSS SANITARY CODE

Medical Society Suggests a Number of Changes in the Proposed Code Being Prepared by the Board of Health.

A meeting of the city physicians of the Ulster County Medical Society was held at the city hall on Friday evening to discuss the proposed sanitary code of the board of health and with the exception of several changes recommended, the new code met with the approval of the physicians. Those present were Drs. Mary Gage Day, Frank Keator, Frank Eastman, A. A. Stern, E. E. Norwood, Daniel Connelly, A. S. Vrooman, Henry Van Hovenberg, Ingalls and Health Officer L. K. Stelle.

Dr. Keator, president of the medical society, called the meeting to order and said that it had been called in response to a letter he had received from Mayor Canfield enclosing a copy of the proposed code and asking the opinion of the medical society, and whether it had any suggestions or changes to suggest in regard to the code. Dr. Eastman was elected secretary and Dr. Ingalls was appointed to read the new code, which contained about fifty or more typewritten pages.

The new code was read in sections and discussed. The first change suggested by the physicians occurred in Regulation 4, in regard to nuisances, and it was suggested that the words "plumbing and sanitary inspectors or any police officer designated by the chief of police" be included in the paragraph allowing any member of the board of health or health officer to go on premises where a nuisance was maintained.

Regulation 5 in regard to vaults and removal of contents, the physicians were of the opinion that permits to clean vaults should be issued by the health officer instead of the sanitary inspector. The physicians were also of the opinion that no vault should be cleaned unless a suitable tar pot was burning at the entrance so unbearable that neighbors are forced to close their doors and windows. It was decided to suggest that the words "no vault to be cleaned unless suitable tar pot is burning" be included in any other deodorant meeting with the approval of the board of health.

Garbage Removal.
Regulation 7 in regard to garbage removal came in for general discussion. The physicians were of the opinion that the city should be divided into districts and no one allowed to collect garbage in the city until he had secured a permit from the board of health and had been assigned to a district. Even then a man should not be allowed a permit unless he had a specially constructed box on his wagon which had air tight covers and it was suggested that the following words be included in that regulation: "that garbage only be collected in districts assigned by the board of health and in wagons with air tight metal box."

The physicians also believed that the section dealing with complaints began with the words "the men are allowed to remove the garbage" should be removed from the sidewalk within one hour after being emptied should be changed to "a reasonable length of time." As one doctor pertinently said "no one knows when the garbage man is coming around to collect and it is not right to expect that a man should sit around waiting for his garbage pail to be emptied."

The physicians were also of the opinion that trees limbs and grasses that had been trimmed should be tied in bundles and placed on the sidewalk for collection instead of forcing the householder to place them in proper vessels.

Finally on motion, it was decided to refer Regulation 7 back to the board of health for reconstruction, suggesting that the changes noted be included.

Infectious Diseases.
It was suggested that in Regulation 11 in regard to infectious diseases, notice to be given that the words "it shall be the duty of the head of every family in the absence of a physician to report any communicable disease to the board of health within 12 hours" be included.

Regulation 12 in regard to infectious diseases of animals it was decided should be sent back for reconstruction as it did not include any provision whereby the board of health is notified of what animal has a communicable disease.

Stables and Manure Pits.
Regulation 15 in regard to stables and manure pits, also came in for general discussion. The physicians believed that the provision that every manure pit be emptied every two weeks should be eliminated and the period should be extended or the time of removal be made optional with the board of health, and it was moved to send that section back for reconstruction.

Milk Inspection.

Regulation 30 in regard to milk inspection, also came in for general discussion and it was decided that subsection B of the regulation be referred back for reconstruction with the recommendation that there be no charge made for the enamel sign the milk dealer is required to have placed on his delivery wagon.

It was also decided to strike out well fitted iron containers in subsection F of the regulation and substitute in its stead "containers constructed of materials that meet with approval of the board of health."

Section 4, subsection H, of the same regulation, also came in for discussion. This provided that where there were cases of scarlet fever, typhoid, diphtheria or smallpox on premises where milk is produced, sold or sold shall be reported to the board of health and it was suggested that tuberculosis and measles be included in the list of communicable diseases.

Dr. Stelle Appointed Committee.
It was also the sense of the society that no communicable diseases be placarded except those specified by the state board of health.

Dr. L. K. Stelle, at the close of the meeting, was made a committee of one to report to the board of health the action of the society in regard to the code.

Mine Fire Breaks Out Again.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Hillcrest, Alberta, June 20.—Fire broke out again today in mine No. 20, of the Hillcrest collieries where 197 men lost their lives by an explosion yesterday and rescuers were forced to abandon their work and flee in safety. Only fifty-two bodies, including those of James Quigley, mine superintendent and Thomas Taylor, a fire boss, had been recovered when the rescue work was stopped.

BASEBALL NOTES

Baltimore of the Federal league has signed a pitcher named Fish. Wonder if he'll prove to be a whale.

Second baseman Bobby Byrne, of the Phillies, still lands on the ball the hardest of any of the little men.

Washington is first in war, first in peace and first to make a triple play in the American league this year.

Manager Jimmy Sheppard is carrying 23 men on his team and hopes to get 14 or 15 who can play ball.

Joe Cantillon of Minneapolis might try the suggestion of signing a youngster or two, to steady his team of old-timers.

Eddie Plank suggests a home for the aged ball players. Wise old man. He would then be sure of shelter when he retires in 1999.

Plank and Davis are now the only members of the Athletics of 1902 still with Manager Mack. D. F. Murphy was the last one to go.

The Washington Star says: "One thing is certain. 'Stuffy' McInnes can travel farther for a foul than any other first sacker in the U. S. A."

"He's a fine young veteran," said Charles W. Somers, owner of the Cleveland club, upon witnessing Terry Turner on duty at third base.

Shortstop Barbare of New Orleans, counted on only as a possible substitute in the early calculations, is proving one of the sensations of the league.

(F. Augustus Heinze.)

New York, June 20.—According to William Travers Jerome, F. Augustus Heinze, the former "Copper King," is seriously ill at his home in West Thirtieth street and is too ill to appear in court in the $275,000 judgment suit obtained against him for default. The suit concerned a promissory note given by Heinze in pay for 13,000 shares of stock of the Mercantile National Bank.

BASEBALL GAMES IN FRANCE

Spectators Now Turn Out In Large Numbers, Declares American Instructor Burgess.

France in a year and a half has come to like baseball so well that at least 4,000 spectators are now to be seen at baseball games whenever they are played in the principal cities, according to W. H. Burgess, who returned the other day aboard the French liner Lorraine, after spending 18 months there teaching baseball.

Mr. Burgess had a copy of a book, "Le Baseball. Par John B. Foster," with photographs of some of the French teams, which shows that while the French may be adopting the game they are not adopting the American baseball uniforms. Each player is attired neatly and lightly in short tights and light shoes, more of a gymnasium outfit than diamond apparel.

The French are not only enthusiastic over baseball, but the many teams which have been organized are showing proficiency in the game, according to Mr. Burgess.

"I am president of the baseball club at Vesinet, and whenever we have played we have had a large attendance," he said. "All the baseball teams in the republic are under the direction of the racing club of France. The enthusiasm with which the young men have taken up playing, and the interest of the public, show that baseball has a great future in France."

BIG ASSET OF BOSTON TEAM

Charles Hall Broke In as Professional Player in 1906 With Seattle—Heads Wrecking Crew.

Charles Louis Hall, pitcher of the Boston Red Sox, was born in Ventura, Cal., May 6, 1883. He broke in as a professional in 1906 with the Seattle team of the Northwestern league. The following season Hall joined the St. Paul American association team and pitched there in 1907-08. Hall's good work with the "Saints" caused Boston to purchase his release in 1909 and he has been a member of the Red Sox team ever since. As head of the Sox wrecking crew Hall has done his best work.

NEW YORKER MAY FLY ATLANTIC AS THIRD PILOT.

Hammond, N. Y., June 20.—A new route for the Rodman Wamaker transatlantic flight from St. Johns, Newfoundland, to Queensown, Ireland, by way of the Azores and Cape Finisterre, was announced Wednesday by Lieut. Porte. It is thought that a third pilot will be taken on the trip. J. A. Kiley, of New York, will be the navigator. The machine is now being assembled in the factory. The transatlantic trip will be attempted some time soon. The engine has been installed on the seaplane.

CARRANZA FLEES FROM HIS FOLLOWERS. (Upper, Type of poor peon family at Saltillo. Lower, Celebration in honor of arrival of Carranza at Saltillo.)

General Carranza fled Wednesday from Saltillo to seek refuge at Laredo. Representative Kent, of California, conveyed the news to Washington. A dispatch late Wednesday night from Nuevo Laredo confirmed the story of Carranza's flight, and added that he would be detailed by Villa's rebels, if Villa desired it. On his arrival in Saltillo several days ago, Carranza distributed money to the poor peons. The general was received by thousands.

Queer Old Book Titles.

These are some of the odd titles of old English books published in the time of Cromwell:

"A Most Delectable Sweet Perfumed Nougat For God's Saints to Smell At."

"Biscuit Baked In the Oven of Charity, carefully conserved for the Chickens of the Church, the Sparrows of the Spirit and the Sweet Swallows of Salvation."

"A Sigh of Sorrow For the Sinners of Zion breathed out of a Hole in the Wall of an Earthly Vessel known Among Men by the name of Samuel Fish."

"Eggs of Charity Layed For the Chickens of the Covenant and Baked with the Water of Divine Love. Take ye out and Eat."

"The Spiritual Mustard Pot to make the Soul Sneez with Devotion."

Taking a Mean Advantage.

Once a thrifty Scotch physician was called to a case where a woman had dislocated her jaw. He very soon put her right. The woman asked how much was to pay. The doctor named his fee. The patient thought it too much. He, however, would not take less, and as the woman refused to give him the fee he began to yawn. Yawning, as every one knows, is infectious. The young woman in turn yawned. Her jaw again went out of joint, and the doctor triumphantly said, "Now, until you hand me over my fee your jaw can remain as it is." Needless to say, the money was promptly paid.

MAY BE CANDIDATE TO SUCCEED ROOT.

(James Wadsworth.)

Washington, June 20.—According to rumors which are being circulated in political circles here, James Wadsworth is William Barnes's choice as candidate for United States Senate to succeed Elihu Root as senator from New York.

SOME FAMOUS PAINTINGS.

A Tiny Work of Art and Rosa's Transformed Harpsichord.

The smallest painting in the world of distinctive merit was executed on the smooth side of a grain of corn by a Flemish artist. On this limited surface the artist painted in perfect detail a mill, a miller with a sack of grain on his back, a horse and cart and a group of several peasants standing in a road.

The largest picture ever painted is said to be a panorama of the Mississippi river, executed by John Banvard, an artist who died in Watertown, S. D., in 1891. The gigantic canvas was twenty-two feet high and nearly two miles long. It gave a detailed representation of 2,000 miles of the Father of Waters.

The largest of the old masters' canvases is Murillo's "Appearance of the Christ Child to St. Anthony of Padua." The picture is ten feet wide and eighteen feet high.

It is related that a friend called on Salvador Rosa in Florence one day and found him playing on an old harpsichord. The caller asked the artist why he kept such a worthless instrument.

"Why, it is not worth a scudo!" the friend said.

"I will wager," replied Rosa, "that it shall be worth a thousand before you see it again."

A bet was made. Rosa immediately painted a landscape on the lid that not only sold for 1,000 scudi, but was accounted a work of great merit.

Inadvisable.

During a snowstorm on the Highland railway a train was held up for an hour or so. The guard, a cheery Scot, passed along the carriages trying to keep up the spirits of the passengers. An old gentleman angrily complained that if the train didn't go on he would "die of cold."

"Tak' my advice an' no' dae that," replied the guard. "Min' y', we chairge a shillin' a mile for corpses."—Dundee Advertiser.

Wireless Messages.

Wireless messages are sent much more easily at night than in the day time and in winter than in summer, and the range under favorable conditions at midnight during midwinter is said to be several hundred per cent better than at noon in midsummer.

The Barrier.

GREENKILL PARK WHERE PEOPLE REST

Natural Beauty Spot Where, Amid Finest Scenery, Quiet and Seclusion Are Found Only a Few Minutes' Trip From the City.

The transformation of an abandoned village into one of the most beautiful country resorts in this county of beautiful resorts has been carried on at Greenkill Park so quietly during the past four years that comparatively few persons in this city realize the wonderful beauty of the place and the progress that has been made there in developing one of the beauty spots of Ulster county into an ideal summer resort. Although only three miles from the heart of the city, Greenkill Park is annoying others while enjoying himself. No detailed description of the scenery in and around Greenkill Park has been attempted in this article, for the reason that, to use a trite phrase, it "beggars description." A few pictures have been selected with a view to outlining the variety and scope of the scenery. A thousand pictures could be made, each different and each as beautiful as any of these shown.

To a Freeman reporter who visited Greenkill Park a few days ago and who had been familiar with it in the days when the beauties of nature were spoiled by the operation of a noisy, dusty, cement mill, the transformation seemed almost a miracle. Every scar that might be a reminder of past useful but distinctly ugly activities of the little hamlet has been removed, leaving nothing to mar the natural beauty of the scene. Nature has been restored to her own; assisted but not thrust aside or revolutionized. The old houses that were picturesque and well located have been retained and made more picturesque externally by the addition of balconies and piazzas. Inside they have been modernized just enough to make them convenient and comfortable. Neither comfort nor picturesque beauty has been sacrificed. The old stone houses, one of them built in 1752, have lost none of their quaint, antique attraction to the eye, either inside or outside, although they have been equipped with ranges in the kitchens, refrigerators in the cellars, hot and cold water in the bath rooms, telephones and other conveniences.

This mention of water reminds one that Greenkill Park is unique among summer resorts in the quantity and quality of its water supply. It is probably the only resort that is furnished with two kinds of running water in each cottage—hard and soft—and both absolutely pure. The hard water, impregnated with lime and other minerals to a slight degree, is almost ice cold. It comes from a long abandoned quarry at the base of Fly Mountain, which makes an admirable underground reservoir, insuring the water against pollution from any source. This reservoir is usually or collectively just as one pleases to turn his head or take a few steps. And with it all there is quiet and peace. No steam whistles, no jangling bells, no clatter of trolley cars, no dust from speeding automobiles, no hooting and howling from parties of joy riders returning home from some resort—for Greenkill Park is that rare thing, a place off the beaten track but not remote—secluded but accessible—an eddy in the current of life.

The roads that lead into the park are good enough for the purpose they serve, yet not so blatantly good that they attract the passing throng. No automobile ever passes through the Park on its shrieking way to Somewhere Else, for the reason that the roads leading into the Park from the main highways are not the way to Somewhere Else. Unless you are going to Greenkill Park you do not get there at all. It is at the end of the road, but it is less than a mile from the other roads, over the hills, that carry the traffic between other places. Therefore, while you have to seek Greenkill Park, you do not have far to go to find it. Five minutes in your automobile will take you from to a view of the without meddling with nature outside the paths not a tree has cut or trimmed and wild flowers abound in their unrestrained growth. And the wanderer along paths does not have to walk to the hotel or a cottage when. Everywhere there are springs of water readily accessible.

Birds abound here is no better place for observation and study of bird life than short time ago a party of biologists visited Greenkill Park. In six hours saw and identified kinds of wild birds. From a farm the outskirts of the Park, chickens and milk are furnished. In an isolated spot a modern laundry is operated for the use of the guests at the Inn, and such cottages who do not care to have their laundry work done in the kitchens of their own cottages. To the student of American history, in a general way, Greenkill Park is a point of interest. The Greenkill stream, from which it takes its name, contributed its waters to aid the struggling patriots of the Revolutionary War. The bridge at the Casino, unrestrained and merely ornamental, turned wheels of three flour mills a century and a half ago and from these a generous proportion of the flour that kept alive the army of Washington at Valley Forge was supplied. off the main lines of road and few persons pass through it on the way to other places. Therefore it is undisturbed and only a few persons are known to all who have not made a special trip there.

Those who found Greenkill Park the first summer it was opened have been there every summer since. They haven't made much noise about it and it has not been advertised very much. The fact is that these pioneers were reluctant to risk losing a good thing, fearing that the charm of the place would be spoiled by noisy crowds. Their fears were groundless, for there is nothing about Greenkill Park to attract undesirable. The summer resort visitor whose idea of a good time in the country includes merry-go-rounds, brass bands, beer gardens, vaudeville shows, gambling houses, and bellyhoo men inviting the crowd to see the fat woman and the only wild man in captivity, could not be kept in Greenkill Park unless he were chained to a tree. It isn't his kind of a place and the people who do enjoy it are not his kind of folks any more

It is probably the only resort that is furnished with two kinds of running water in each cottage—hard and soft—and both absolutely pure. The hard water, impregnated with lime and other minerals to a slight degree, is almost ice cold. It comes from a long abandoned quarry at the base of Fly Mountain, which makes an admirable underground reservoir, insuring the water against pollution from any source. This reservoir is the state road into the Park and every cottage in the Park may be reached by automobile. Fifteen minutes' drive will take you from the city to the heart of this city. You can walk to the Eddyville yacht landing in 15 minutes or to the post office and store in Eddyville or Bloomington in the same time. But you do not need to walk to the post office, for if your mail is addressed to you at Greenkill Park, Kingston R. F. D., the carrier delivers it at your door by 10 o'clock each morning. If you are in a hurry to communicate with the outside world you can use the telephone, with which every cottage and the Inn is equipped.

While there is all this accessibility and at the same time freedom from outside noises at Greenkill Park, there is no lack of life in the Park itself for those who care for it. There is a Casino, in which dances are held and where the cottagers and hotel guests may congregate—a sort of informal club with no membership fee and no formality. Of course, there is than he is their kind. There is nothing to attract the crowd or the transient. Greenkill Park does not invite those who do not come to enjoy it as it is. Its scenery, air and water will attract those who enjoy peaceful hours amid natural beauty and its accessibility makes it possible for those who cannot seek such attractions in far off places to enjoy them within a few minutes ride of all the conveniences and inconveniences of the city.

The people at Greenkill Park are informal and democratic among themselves. They are leading the simple life—not too simple but just simple enough to be restful. They do as they please and accord the same privilege to others, and can safely do this because they rely upon one another to exercise that amount of restraint and innate sense of propriety that prevents a person from being by streams that come from fissures in the rock that forms the uninhabited and therefore unpolluted mountain. Contamination by surface water is impossible. The soft water comes from the sand strata at the base of the hill at the south of Greenkill Park and is equally pure but not so cold. It is, however, much better for laundry and bathing purposes than the hard water.

There are 17 cottages in Greenkill Park in addition to the Inn which has, with annex, 28 rooms and in which cottagers who so desire may take their meals. No two cottages are alike, none of them are ranged in formal rows and no road or path is straight. Therein lies one of the charms of the park. The view is different from each viewpoint and the viewpoint changes with every step one takes. Water, forest, distant mountain, nearby hills, peaceful valley—all are to be seen, separated the Inn, too, as a social center. But for those who desire it there is quiet and the sense of freedom from crowds and formalities. There are 160 acres in the Park and with a total population of 150, the greatest number that was entertained there at one time last summer, there is an acre for each person to surround himself with.

For the strenuously inclined, there is rowing on the creek, fishing, bathing in the creek and a fine baseball ground. The Park controls three and a half miles of water front along the Rondout creek, so that even the fisherman who desires quiet can easily find it. He can find fish, too. There are four and a half miles of private drives and walks in the Park, some of them winding through the valley, others skirting the hilltops and still others curving in the woodlands. In laying out these woodland paths the great aim has been to assist the visiences are made in official documents relating to the campaigns of the war to the supplying of flour from the Greenkill mills, not only within what is now Greenkill Park, but the DeWitt mill, farther up the stream, which still stands. It was in the Greenkill flour mill that stood a short distance below the Casino that the first Rosendale cement was ground, first for experiment and then, in a very small way, as a commercial proposition. From this beginning grew the tremendous business, one branch of which later filled Greenkill with noise and dust and all manner of useful but unlovely activity, which has been followed by its present beauty and calm.

So from the beginning, Greenkill has been a manufacturing place. Who shall say that in being revolutionized from the manufacture of flour and cement into its present business of manufacturing health and happiness it has lost any of its usefulness to humanity?

GREENKILL PARK WHERE PEOPLE REST

Natural Beauty Spot Where, Amid Finest Scenery, Quiet and Seclusion Are Found Only a Few Minutes' Trip From the City.

The transformation of an abandoned village into one of the most beautiful country resorts in this county of beautiful resorts has been carried on at Greenkill Park so quietly during the past four years that comparatively few persons in this city realize the wonderful beauty of the place and the progress that has been made there in developing one of the beauty spots of Ulster county into an ideal summer resort. Although only three miles from the heart of the city, Greenkill Park is annoying others while enjoying himself. No detailed description of the scenery in and around Greenkill Park has been attempted in this article, for the reason that, to use a trite phrase, it "beggars description." A few pictures have been selected with a view to outlining the variety and scope of the scenery. A thousand pictures could be made, each different and each as beautiful as any of these shown.

To a Freeman reporter who visited Greenkill Park a few days ago and who had been familiar with it in the days when the beauties of nature were spoiled by the operation of a noisy, dusty, cement mill, the transformation seemed almost a miracle. Every scar that might be a reminder of past useful but distinctly ugly activities of the little hamlet has been removed, leaving nothing to mar the natural beauty of the scene. Nature has been restored to her own; assisted but not thrust aside or revolutionized. The old houses that were picturesque and well located have been retained and made more picturesque externally by the addition of balconies and piazzas. Inside they have been modernized just enough to make them convenient and comfortable. Neither comfort nor picturesque beauty has been sacrificed. The old stone houses, one of them built in 1752, have lost none of their quaint, antique attraction to the eye, either inside or outside, although they have been equipped with ranges in the kitchens, refrigerators in the cellars, hot and cold water in the bath rooms, telephones and other conveniences.

This mention of water reminds one that Greenkill Park is unique among summer resorts in the quantity and quality of its water supply. It is probably the only resort that is furnished with two kinds of running water in each cottage—hard and soft—and both absolutely pure. The hard water, impregnated with lime and other minerals to a slight degree, is almost ice cold. It comes from a long abandoned quarry at the base of Fly Mountain, which makes an admirable underground reservoir, insuring the water against pollution from any source. This reservoir is rate or collectively just as one pleases to turn his head or take a few steps. And with it all there is quiet and peace. No steam whistles, no jangling bells, no clatter of trolley cars, no dust from speeding automobiles, no hooting and howling from parties of joy riders returning home from some resort—for Greenkill Park is that rare thing, a place off the beaten track but not remote—secluded but accessible—an eddy in the current of life.

The roads that lead into the park are good enough for the purpose they serve, yet not so blatantly good that they attract the passing through. No automobile ever passes through the Park on its shrieking way to Somewhere Else, for the reason that the roads leading into the Park from the main highways are not the way to Somewhere Else. Unless you are going to Greenkill Park you do not get there at all. It is at the end of the road, but it is less than a mile from the other roads, over the hills, that carry the traffic between other places. Therefore, while you have to seek Greenkill Park, you do not have far to go to find it. Five minutes in your automobile will take you from off the main lines of road and few persons pass through it on the way to other places. Therefore it is unlocated in districts assigned to the known to all who have not made a special trip there. These who found Greenkill Park the first summer it was opened have been there every summer since. They haven't made much noise about it and it has not been advertised very much. The fact is that these pioneers were reluctant to risk losing a good thing, fearing that the charm of the place would be spoiled by noisy crowds. Their fears were groundless, for there is nothing about Greenkill Park to attract undesirable. The summer resort visitor whose idea of a good time in the country includes merry-go-rounds, brass bands, beer gardens, vaudeville shows, gambling houses and ballyhoo men inviting the crowd to see the fat woman and the only wild man in captivity, could not be kept in Greenkill Park unless he were chained to a tree. It isn't his kind of a place and the people who do enjoy it are not his kind of folks any more

ASQUITH RECEIVES SIX SUFFRAGETTES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, June 20.—The militant suffragettes were recognized officially by the British government for the first time today when a deputation of six women were received in audience by Premier Asquith, in accordance with a promise he made to Sylvia Pankhurst on Thursday.

Premier Asquith showed a sympathetic bearing in his attitude toward the delegates of the militants, all of whom were working women.

One of the first demands of the deputation was that the Premier would exercise his authority to have the criminal charges against Miss Pankhurst set aside so that she could enjoy freedom. The women told Mr. Asquith that Sylvia's health had been shattered by her experiences in English jails.

Premier Asquith listened patiently, then said he would speak to Home Secretary McKenna to see what could be done about securing the unconditional release of Sylvia Pankhurst.

Miss Pankhurst is at liberty now under the authority of the Cat and Mouse bill. She was released indefinitely from Holloway jail on Thursday because of illness induced by her refusal to eat or drink.

MEDIATORS NOW HAVE HOPE REVIVED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Mediation Headquarters, Niagara Falls, Ont., June 20.—Hope for a successful conclusion of the Mexican negotiations was revived at noon today. A chance for a settlement through a dignified surrender of the Huerta delegates was discovered. Their avenue of retreat from the deadlock was found in the language of the statement they recently issued rejecting the demand of the American delegates that a Constitutional be chosen to succeed Huerta.

In this Senator Rabasa and his colleagues said they had rejected the American candidates "without even consulting" their government. Now that they have consulted the government and informed Huerta the Americans' refusal to modify their terms, there is a possibility that the Mexican delegates may change their positions. Well informed men connected with the proceedings say that on this possibility hung the one chance of continuing the conference. That the American delegates were optimistic was evident by the general air of cheerfulness prevailing at their headquarters.

Pleasing Recital.

The music studio of A. H. Snyder, piano and voice teacher and organist, on John street, was the scene of a very pleasant gathering on Friday evening, it being the occasion of the annual musical of Mr. Snyder's pupils. The studio and adjoining rooms were profusely and artistically decorated with mountain laurel and roses. The program for the evening opened with a piano solo, "Song without Words," by Schumann, played gracefully by Percy Jones and Mr. Snyder. The next number, a waltz in major by Lamb was very prettily played from memory by Cora Snyder. Just at this point the program was varied with a fine vocal trio, "Praise Ye," from Verdi's Aida, sung by Mrs. Snyder and Messrs. A. Rifenbary and Snyder. Another memorized number, played well and in pleasing manner, was Fischer's "Wayward Rose," given by John Krum, son of Dr. and Mrs. Krum of Saugerties. A selection of considerable brilliancy and variety was "The Shepherd's Dance" by Kern, played without notes by Miss Mary Moran. An unusually dignified and richly harmonized vocal duet followed, "Rise, Crowned with Light," by Brackett and sung by Mr. Snyder and Mrs. Rifenbary. Miss Edith DuFon then played from memory a "Barcarole, Over the Waves," by Williams, a bright and rippling number played daintily. This was followed by a vocal number sung artistically by Mrs. Snyder and Mr. Rifenbary, "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me," by Pontius. A mazurka in B flat, "Flora," by Wenzel, varied in its movement and style was well rendered, without notes, by Miss Theresa Schoenfeld. One of the most difficult, yet delightful piano numbers of the evening was the four-hand arrangement of Mozart's famous Larghetto from the Quintet in A Major for clarinet and strings, which was played in a musicianly manner by Miss Hazard and Mr. Snyder. Another beautiful vocal trio as sung by Mrs. Snyder and Messrs. Snyder and Rifenbary, was Kreutzer's "God is Love." "Fairly Flowers," a waltz in B flat by La More, was played with a swinging grace of rhythm, clear phrasing and finish, quite from memory by Miss Ruth Kelsey. A brilliant yet gliding, sweeping composition was the Barcarole by Ehrlich, played with expression and without notes by Miss Edna Schepmoes. One of the finest vocal numbers of the evening was Nevins' "The Angelus," as rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Snyder. It was the good fortune, following good work, of Miss Edna Merrill to be the piano prima donna of the evening. Brazil's "Nortune in D flat" is a charming and all too little known composition and Miss Merrill played the same with artistic and musicianly appreciation and skill which delighted all.

One of the unusual and enjoyable as well as instructive features of the evening was the brief but clever sketch of "Music in Mayflower Days," as given by Mr. Snyder. Beginning with the landing of the Mayflower and the first hymn sung on the bleak coast by the women, Mr. Snyder showed how the Puritanism of those days had ignored and retarded the growth of music in the new land. Such music as was allowed was most lugubrious and scarce worthy the name. Many humorous bits were told of the early struggles toward musical light in this new world, as shown by the old rules governing singing, teaching, etc. Harvard College, by making music a real study, fully established the respectability of the art. The gradual introduction of the spinet, the harpsichord and the organ was noted together with the first printing of sheet music in this country. This most interesting sketch closed with a brief and realistic account of our first American composer, William Billings.

The sketch was followed by a charming vocal solo, sung by Miss Florence Dahme, who possesses a remarkably fine mezzo-soprano voice. She sang and sang well, Brackett's "To Him That Overcometh." With careful study Miss Dahme should become a vocalist of note in the future. The next number on the program was of particular note to the pupils, being the awarding of prizes of valued compositions of the best editions to those students who had been most faithful at lessons and most persevering and careful in their work. Miss Edna Schepmoes and Miss Edith DuFon had missed no lessons and won the first prizes, others being awarded to Miss Ruth Kelsey, Miss Cora Shadrer and Miss Theresa Schoenfeld. Mr. Snyder announced that the piano classes would be continued through July for those students who wished to themselves of the leisure of the vacation and said that those covered through this month might be considered a bank on which they might draw during winter months, should a blizzard then detain them from lessons.

The enjoyable program brought to a close with the interpreted rendition of "Grieg's Norwegian Dances" as given by Merrill and Mr. Snyder, a signal vocal trio, and one of the enjoyed, "Sweet is thy Work, Wiegand" as sung by Mr. and Mrs. Snyder and Mr. Rifenbary. Owing a threatening weather some of the students who were to take part in program, but who lived out of town were unable to be present.

SATURDAY, JUNE 20.

Sun rises, 4:22; sets, 7:39.
Weather, clear. Humidity, 40 to 45.

The Temperature.

The lowest point registered by the Freeman's thermometer last night was 50 degrees. The highest point registered up to noon today was 66 degrees.

Weather Forecast.

Washington, June 20.—Eastern New York: Fair, continued cool to night, possibly light frost in low places in the interior. Sunday, fair, somewhat warmer; moderate north to east winds.

Monograms vs. K. of C.

Sunday afternoon at McVey's Field the Red Monograms will meet the Knights of Columbus team. The game will be called at 3 o'clock. Both teams comprise some of the best amateur talent in the city and it ought to be a battle worth going miles to see. Thus far this season the Monograms have lost but one game and have a string of twelve straight victories.

Gone With McCabe.

Jimmy Clinton, last year with Kingston, and probably the best pitcher in the New York and New Jersey League last season, with the possible exception of Luque, has been signed by Bill McCabe of Poughkeepsie. Kelly, one of Kingston's heaviest hitters last year, has also signed up with Bill. It must look like old times on Athletic Field to see McCabe's lineup composed of most of the old Colonials.

On Board the Mandalay.

The Delaware & Hudson Company has been refitting a train ferryboat formerly used in carrying trains between One Hundred and Thirty-ninth street to Jersey City and renamed it Mandalay. It will run from New York to Newburgh and carry passengers for the round trip for fifty cents.

Took No Chances.

The height of caution is illustrated by the Brooklyn man who did not marry until assured by his doctors that he had only one more day to live.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTS REVIEW

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, June 20.—Here are a few views that have trickled in from Europe concerning the Jack Johnson-Frank Moran "championship fight" that is scheduled to be staged in Paris on June 27. They are printed for the guidance of those who have been thinking of wagering a little lucre on the outcome of the "battle."

The fight will be a fake.
The fight will be on the level and promises to be the greatest heavy-weight fight in history.

The fight is a frame-up.
It has been framed so that Johnson will win.

It has been framed so that Moran will win.
Johnson is in fine condition, has trained faithfully, and is now down to weight, and able to put up the greatest battle of his life.

Johnson hasn't trained more than three or four hours a week in the last six weeks, and before then he didn't do any training at all. He is 50 pounds overweight, his wind is bad, and he is so flabby and out of condition that he will collapse after six rounds.

Moran has not been training but has been spending most of his time, day and night, in or around the gilded Paris cafes. In the last few weeks he has become a familiar figure in the Paris night life.
Moran has trained earnestly at his quarters in the little village just outside of Paris and is in wonderful condition. Seemingly without effort, he has been giving some terrible beatings to his sparring partners, and they are predicting a speedy knockout victory for him.

The moving picture people are the ones who are to decide just how long the fight is to last. It is reported that they have cautioned Johnson that he must not knock out the white man before the 10th round, at least, as a film showing a shorter fight, would not make money.

Johnson feels very bitter toward Moran because of his slighting remarks, while in New York about six weeks ago, relative to Johnson's condition, and threatens to smash him to a pulp the very first time they meet.

Johnson and Moran often meet in the office that serves as the headquarters for the managers of both fighters, and are on the very best of terms.

A check for $30,000 as Johnson's share of the fight has been placed in a safety deposit vault.
The check for $30,000 that has been placed in the bank to Johnson's credit isn't worth the paper it is written on.

Johnson is willing to bet $10,000 at big odds, that he will defeat Moran in 10 rounds or less.

Moran is willing to wager a huge amount that he will knock out the negro in 10 rounds.

Those who are in on the alleged "fix" neither comfort nor pierce the frameup it is said, have pooled a big bunch of money and are just waiting for "suckers" so that they can bet it, at big odds, and make a "killing."

Outside of these few conflicting details we have, up to the present writing, heard nothing that would cast even the shade of suspicion on this scheduled "fight."

Willie Ritchie, lightweight champion, has been labeled by all persons who claim that he has mixed up in only about six fights since he became champion. Willie has mingled in at least 20 bouts—six of them staged in a ring and the other 14 staged in different places where persons meet to sign up articles for fights.

Taking it from Willie, who expressed himself before his departure for dear, old Lunnion, those fights over terms and conditions are harder than a real scrap. In a scrap, Willie points out, one has but one opponent and when one gets soaked only one usually gets soaked from only one direction, but in battling over terms Willie has found that he's had to fight nearly an army of managers, assistant managers, stake holders, lawyers and promoters, who can soak from any angle. "And you have to be mighty darned careful," remarks Willie, "because if you ain't those fellows are going to hand you a knockout punch when you aren't looking. When I sign up for a fight I'm mighty particular about each condition and term of the fight. I'm out to protect my own interests—and you can bet that I do."

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTS REVIEW

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, June 20.—Here are a few views that have trickled in from Europe concerning the Jack Johnson-Frank Moran "championship fight" that is scheduled to be staged in Paris on June 27. They are printed for the guidance of those who have been thinking of wagering a little lucre on the outcome of the "battle."

The fight will be a fake. The fight will be on the level and promises to be the greatest heavy-weight fight in history.

The fight is a frame-up. It has been framed so that Johnson will win.

Johnson is in fine condition, has trained faithfully, and is now down to weight, and able to put up the greatest battle of his life.

Johnson hasn't trained more than three or four hours a week in the last six weeks, and before then he didn't do any training at all. He is 50 pounds overweight, his wind is bad, and he is so flabby and out of condition that he will collapse after six rounds.

Moran has not been training but has been spending most of his time, day and night, in or around the gilded Paris cafes. In the last few weeks he has become a familiar figure in the Paris night life.

Moran has trained earnestly at his quarters in the little village just outside of Paris and is in wonderful condition. Seemingly without effort, he has been giving some terrible beatings to his sparring partners, and they are predicting a speedy knockout victory for him.

The moving picture people are the ones who are to decide just how long the fight is to last. It is reported that they have cautioned Johnson that he must not knock out the white man before the 10th round, at least, as a film showing a shorter fight, would not make money.

Johnson feels very bitter toward Moran because of his slighting remarks, while in New York about six weeks ago, relative to Johnson's condition, and threatens to smash him to a pulp the very first time they meet.

Johnson and Moran often meet in the office that serves as the headquarters for the managers of both fighters, and are on the very best of terms.

A check for $50,000 as Johnson's share of the fight has been placed in a safety deposit vault.

The check for $30,000 that has been placed in the bank to Johnson's credit isn't worth the paper it is written on.

Johnson is willing to bet $10,000 at big odds, that he will defeat Moran in 10 rounds or less.

Moran is willing to wager a huge amount that he will knock out the negro in 10 rounds.

Those who are in on the alleged "fix" are said to have pooled a big bunch of money and are just waiting for "knockers" so that they can bet it, at big odds, and make a "killing."

Outside of these few conflicting details we have, up to the present writing, heard nothing that would cast even the shade of suspicion on this scheduled "fight."

While Ritchie, lightweight champion, has been labeled by all persons who claim that he has mixed up in only about six fights since he became champion. Willie has mingled in at least 20 bouts—six of them staged in a ring and the other 14 staged in different places where persons meet to sign up articles for fights.

Taking it from Willie, who expressed himself before his departure for dear, old Lunnun, those fights over terms and conditions are harder than a real scrap. In a scrap, Willie points out, one has but one opponent and when one gets soaked one usually gets soaked from only one direction, but in battling over terms Willie has found that he's had to fight nearly an army of managers, assistant managers, stake holders, lawyers and promoters, who can soak from any angle. "And you have to be mighty darned careful," remarks Willie, "because if you ain't those fellows are going to hand you a knockout punch when you aren't looking. When I sign up for a fight I'm mighty particular about each condition and term of the fight. I'm out to protect my own interests—and you can bet that I do."
